Rafael Prignano

John Smith is someone who is constantly working and trying to achieve his dreams. For all meetings and encounters he'll make during his career, he needs to look sharp. He doesn't wish to spend much time looking for and trying on different outfits. John feels like he spends too much time doing this when he could be working on his career.

Although John Smith loves this outfit, he doesn't really know much about style and knows this is the only outfit he looks sharp in. He has no interest in spending time looking for outfits.

He would constantly tell himself he's going to figure out some way on how to come up with outfits without having to really try them on. A friend suggested this app that takes your current wardrobe and creates outfits for you based on what you need and when you need it, so John decides to do some research on the app and decides to try it out.

John Smith tried the app out for the first time and this was the first outfit he was suggested to try on.

This was the second outfit the app suggested. John Smith knew he found the app he was looking for. He doesn't have to spend any time looking for anymore outfits and now he can wear many more outfits than he realized and look sharp while he conducts his business in his career. John Smith is happy.

John Smith has been very successful with his career and decides he wants to go on vacation. The app also suggests what outfits to wear and he can buy clothes directly from the app to match the occasion

John Smith enjoying his time on vacation with clothes he bought that were suggested from the app